

If You Only Knew

By my Grandmother's bed my mother is reading
Psalm 62, "God is my refuge"
My Grandmother stirs, could it be she is awakening
One final time, she has something to say

If you only knew what lies awaiting
If you could only see what I can see
If you could only hear the music playing
The angels singing sweet victory
If you only knew, if you only knew
How much He loves you

By my Grandmother's bed my mama is broken
Psalm 17, "Oh God I call on you"
She does not want to hear any words about leaving
My Grandmother says, "Fear not, this is my time
Into His presence I'll fly"

If you only knew what lies awaiting
If you could only see what I can see
If you could only hear the music playing
The angels singing sweet victory
If you only knew, if you only knew
How much He loves you

If you only knew what lies awaiting
If you could only see what I can see
If you could only hear the music playing
The angels singing sweet victory
If you only knew, if you only knew
How much He loves you
